ALFALFA

Do you want "American" or domestic Alfalfa? There is sometimes a big difference. Many thousands bags of Argentine or South American Alfalfa are being imported, a great deal of which is being sold as "American," at extremely high prices compared with its cost. We have found that practically all Argentine Alfalfa contains "knotweed," a small black three-cornered weed seed. In our experience we have rarely found this weed in domestic seed.

Argentine seed should sell for several dollars a bushel less than domestic, so there is a reason for offering it as "American."
